

Signature: North-East-South-West

Feminine/Masculine Balance: 2/3

Feminine numbers are overall tougher, more tenacious, and enduring but they lack the masculine energy of spontaneity. Masculine numbers have an immediate and noticeable effect, but their impact doesn't last long.

Cardinal Points

The North represents the end of the old and the beginning of the new.

The number six vibrates energies that are less inquisitive than the number one. The energy from this number enables you to be satisfied more easily with your accomplishments than if you only had ones in your Personal Code.

The East reflects the energies of enthusiasm and joy that take root in the developmental stages of new ideas. Having an eight or a three in your personal code imparts you with the gift of intuitive sight; you're able to see through the fake, right through to the genuine and you have an intuitive knack for doing the right thing at the right time. Your ability to read people can be uncanny and you are able to foresee the consequences of decisions through to their conclusions before they're even set in motion. This ability, which comes very hard for those without these numbers in their Codes, comes naturally to you.

People with these numbers also have very special healing abilities. It is not only that you can sift through all the noise of the drama to see right into the heart of an ailment. You have an organic understanding for the importance of treating the cause, not the symptom. You may have come up against quite a bit of resistance from those representing Western medicine as you tried to explain their misguided observations, but take heart that it is people of the East, like you, who will lead the return of holistic healing. Your gift for empathy and your ability to pursue a goal regardless of how challenging it is are your greatest powers. You're not clouded by the need for instant success and you don't let opposition diminish your sense of purpose.

One of your main challenges is fighting avoidance. You see things so clearly, but somehow prefer to sit back and enjoy the beauty around you without taking action when your intuition guides you to change. This can often lead you to create situations in which you're surprised at unpleasant outcomes, even though all the signs telling you to take action to avoid it. The remedy: exercise your willpower.

The South resonates the liveliness needed to present ideas to others. People with the South represented in their Personal Codes share the qualities of charisma, curiosity and expressiveness. To put it quite simply, you don't have difficulty finding supporters for what you believe in, whether it be research findings, a philosophy or a way of life.

You give others the impression that you're strong, but you may hold an inner fear that you won't be able to fulfill your commitments and make good on your promises. You may have even developed a reputation of not following through on your word, but what people don't see is that this is often due to you taking on more than you can handle. Another inner struggle you face is the feeling that you haven't taken full advantage of your day. This may be a recurring thought you have at night right before you go to sleep.

If you don't exhibit these qualities and you do have the South in your Personal Code, it could be very likely that you were suppressed by a stronger personality as a child, which stunted your personal development. (See the book for suggestions on how to tap into your inner self if this is the case.)

Having the two in your energetic signature makes you more prone to spontaneity than if you were only working with a seven. You approach things in a more determined, less enduring way as well.

The energy associated with the seven is slightly less fierce than and not as spontaneous as that of the two. This number influences you to take a little longer to make decisions.

The West embodies the organizational qualities needed to turn a dream into a reality. Western energies are powered by tremendous strength; your willpower and purposefulness are unchallenged by the other Cardinal points. With the West represented in your Personal Code, you're completely fine with being the hardest working workhorse in the field as long as your vision is clear and you believe that success is on your path. With that, you're always open to constructive criticism; anything to open you up to meaningful changes that benefit your progress.

A born leader? Yes, you are. However, patience is not exactly one of your many virtues. You have the perseverance and business drive to take projects from ideas to working pieces and your financial prowess make successful money management second nature to you. There are many geniuses and renown inventors with the influence of the West in their Personal Codes, but since their work is often ahead of its time, many of them are only acknowledged for their contributions after they've crossed over.

Nothing would hurt you more than not being taken seriously, whether that means others not believing in your new idea, not appreciating how important your goals are to you, or not understanding why you haven't given up yet.

If you want to promote the energies of the West, fill your home environment, your office and your closet with the color white. Of particular importance is limiting the amount of green you wear if you want to further cultivate the qualities of the West since green effectively blocks the energies of the West.

The energies of the four are often found among groups of skilled workers, engineers and self-made successes. You're very talented with your hands, producing beautiful things with them that make others feel they have two left hands. This could manifest in many ways, from having the innate talent to decorate a home with beauty and grace to building beautiful homes from the ground up.

Missing Stations

Center: Activities that promote groundedness will help compensate for a missing influence from the Central Cardinal point. If you don't have a zero or a five in your Personal Code, consider activities that allow you to commune with nature, or meditate for a few minutes each day to reconnect with your personal center. An interesting note to consider is that those with no Central influence who fall under an earth sign (Taurus, Virgo, or Capricorn) have an innate tendency to ground on their own so they may not feel the missing energies of the Center as much as other signs.

In terms of specifically missing one of the two Central numbers in your birth date, missing the five often leads to a lack of assertiveness in everyday life, while lacking a zero can lead to not feeling fully satisfied with yourself and having the compulsion to keep checking that everything was done right (even if you already have proof that it has). This could even manifest as perfectionism in those who turn the affliction into a seemingly marketable trait in their professional lives.

Those of you without a zero may also repeatedly ask yourselves whether you've made the right decisions in life, doubting your choices due to your lack of connection to your center. Meditation will help a great deal in alleviating these doubts, as it will teach you to reconnect with your inner voice—your intuition—and that reconnection will sprout the peaceful sense of knowing that you're on the right path when you follow your inner awareness. Another possible manifestation of this sense of doubt about one's choices in life can be depression, particularly on days when there are no concrete plans set in the calendar. The easiest way to counterbalance this low is to go be with nature to bring the awareness of the present back to you.
